“That the PRC has modern aircraft and weapon systems is dangerous enough, but most disturbing is that, as Congressman [Duke] Cunningham revealed, the Clinton administration has allowed PRC [People’s Republic of China, or Communist China] pilots to observe U.S. fighter tactics firsthand at Top Gun. When planes and weapons are equally capable, training and tactics in aerial warfare are everything. In one brief moment in his Capitol Hill office, Cunningham, who is respected as a man of quiet authority, let his true fighter pilot nature show; he was white hot at the Clinton White House’s irresponsibility in allowing PRC aviators to visit Top Gun. Many American naval aviators have paid with their lives to perfect successful fighter tactics. For the Clinton administration to allow PRC pilots to observe our maneuvers is nothing short of betrayal.”

“On New Year’s Eve, I boarded the train to Moscow with an interim stop in Leningrad’s (St. Petersburg) Finland Station.  It was the same route Lenin had taken in 1917 when he returned to Russia to take over the revolution.  It was on my mind because I had read Edmund Wilson’s marvelous book To the Finland Station.  When we came to the Russian border, another isolated outpost, I met my first real live Communist, a pudgy, cherubic-looking guard.” – My Life by Bill Clinton, p. 167

President Bill Clinton gets into journalist Paul Sperry's face.
The Clinton Legacy: Part 2

“Stroke of a pen, law of the land…”
“When I was in England I experimented with marijuana a time or two, and I didn't like it. I didn’t inhale and I didn’t try again.” – Governor Bill Clinton (The New York Times, March 30, 1992)

“Roger had all the pretty girls and drugs and the fast life, and Bill was pretty envious of this,” she said. On one occasion “Roger the Dodger” came back to the bar and said he needed two grams of cocaine right away. They carried out the deal near the ladies room. The “Dodger” then borrowed her “tooter,” her “one-hitter” as she called it, and handed it to the governor. “I watched Bill Clinton lean up against a brick wall. He must have had an adenoid problem because he casually stuck my tooter up his nose,” she said. “He was so messed up that night, he slid down the wall into a garbage can and just sat there like a complete idiot.”

Afterward, they went back to the Governor’s Mansion and partied into the early hours of the morning. “I thought it was the coolest thing in the world that we had a governor who got high.”
– Margie Wilson, from The Secret Life of Bill Clinton by Ambrose Evans-Pritchard, p. 262

“Roger was the filthy one. He was gross. That’s how you could tell,” she said. But if the language was different, the behavior of the two was much the same. They were sharing joints of marijuana. There could be no doubt about it. She could hear Roger saying what it was, where he got it from, what it was like. Then she could hear the Governor bleating his approval: “This is really good shit!”
– Jane Parks, from The Secret Life of Bill Clinton by Ambrose Evans-Pritchard, p. 243

The Clinton brothers were part of the scene. “I met Bill Clinton several times, he’d know my name and I thought he was a wonderful person, but I can tell you that he was never acting like a governor when I saw him.” She claims to have witnessed him taking cocaine on two or three occasions, although only one of them stands out in her memory. It was late at night, around one in the morning, in a room off the kitchen in Lasater’s residence. The only people present were Patty-Anne, Lasater, and Bill Clinton. “He was doing a line. It was just there on the table.”
– Patty-Anne Smith, from The Secret Life of Bill Clinton by Ambrose Evans-Pritchard, p. 289-290

The spin must have been galling for Hot Springs Detective Travis Bunn. A highly decorated Army Special Forces sergeant major, it was he who had mounted the original case against Roger Clinton. In the spring of 1984, Bunn had recorded Roger Clinton saying: “I’ve got to get some for my brother; he’s got a nose like a Hoover vacuum cleaner.”
– The Secret Life of Bill Clinton by Ambrose Evans-Pritchard, p. 241
“Legacy No. 2: Adultery

“I never told anybody to lie. Not a single time. Never.” – Bill Clinton

“I want to say one thing to the American people. I’m going to say this again. I did not have sexual relations with that woman, Miss Lewinsky. I never told anybody to lie. Not a single time. Never. These allegations are false and I need to go back to work for the American people.” – U.S. President Bill Clinton, on January 26, 1998

“Indeed, I did have a relationship with Ms. Lewinsky that was not appropriate. In fact, it was wrong. It constituted a critical lapse in judgment and a personal failure on my part for which I am solely and completely responsible.”
– U.S. President Bill Clinton, on August 17, 1998
“I think the Chinese will in fact be bending over backwards to make sure that they run it in a competent and able and fair manner. They'll want to demonstrate to a distant part of the world that they can be a responsible partner. And I would be very surprised if any adverse consequences flowed from the Chinese running the canal.”
